

Essential spectra of some matrix operators by means measure of noncompactness

B. Abdelmoumen

Measures of noncompactness have been successfully applied in topology, functional analysis and operator theory. In this paper, we work with the notion of the measures of noncompactness in order to investigate the essential spectra of some matrix operators on Banach spaces. These results are exploited to describe the essential spectra of two-group transport operators.